

BLANCO / PLATOS

Blancos are clear and unaged tequila. They are typically bottled directly after distillation, providing the raw agave flavor that is distinct to tequila.

AÑEJO

Añejo tequila is aged in wooden barrels for at least a year. This aging darkens the tequila to an amber color, providing a smoother and more complex flavor.

FLIGHTS

You can choose any tequilas you'd like for your flight, but we suggest either a vertical or horizontal flight. This allows you to truly savor the subtle differences that the aging process provides.

VERTICAL FLIGHT

Choose one of our brands and try all three types of the same label. For example: Cabo Wabo Blanco, Cabo Wabo Reposado, and Cabo Wabo Añejo. Move from the pure agave taste of Blanco, to the the mellow Reposado, and finally the smooth Añejo. This is a great way to taste and compare, so you can find your favorite type of tequila.

HORIZONTAL FLIGHT

Choose three tequilas of the same type—Blanco, Reposado or Añejo—for to compare. This will help you determine which brand has the best flavor for your preferred type of tequila. For example, select Hornitos Añejo, Don Julio Añejo and Patrón Añejo.

REPOSADOS

These tequilas are rested and aged in wooden barrels for minimum of two months, but less than a year. The wooden barrels give reposados its pale golden color and mellow the flavors of the pure agave.
